DATE: October 29, 1951

FROM : D. M. LADD

SUBJECT: SURVEY OF CENTRAL INTELLIGENCE AGENCY BY DULLES COMMITTEE

On March 12, 1948, Admiral Sidney Souers advised an FBI Liaison representative that the National Security Council had approved the employment of Messrs. Alan Dulles, Matthew Correa and William Jackson for the purpose of composing a committee to determine the adequacy and efficiency of CIA's operations and to arrive at an evaluation of CIA's activities.

Although Admiral Souers had previously indicated to the same Liaison representative that it would be necessary for the members of the above-mentioned committee to talk to other branches of the Government, including the FBI, the committee in question waited until November 23, 1948, approximately nine months after the survey in question had been begun, before calling upon the FBI. On this occasion, Mr. Correa called upon Mr. Ladd. However, Mr. Correa at this time made no effort to adequately discuss the findings of the Dulles Committee as related to the coordination of domestic and foreign intelligence.

The Dulles Report was issued to the National Security Council on January 1, 1949. As noted, this report for the most part treated critically the management and operation of CIA but it also discussed and made rather extensive recommendations regarding the responsibilities and jurisdiction of the FBI. The Bureau, of course, was not consulted or surveyed to obtain the facts on which the Dulles Committee could base these recommendations.

OBSERVATIONS:

Aside from the many inaccuracies contained in the Dulles Report, it should be noted that the two principal members of the Dulles Committee, i.e. William Jackson and Alan Dulles, later became officials of CIA. Jackson was for a time the Deputy Director and was recently succeeded by Dulles.

Dear General Smith:

I refer to your letter of October 26, 1951, relating to the call made upon you by Messrs. Keay and DeLoach.

[redacted] there has been on the part of some elements within the Central Intelligence Agency an attitude toward the Federal Bureau of Investigation which certainly does not tend to effect the close harmony, mutual confidence, and coordination of effort between our two organizations that is so necessary for attaining our common goal, namely an effective program for all security.

At the conference which Messrs. Keay and DeLoach had with you, you referred to several matters upon which it is imperative to comment.

While discussing other matters with General Smith this morning, he indicated to Mr. DeLoach that he sincerely hoped you would accept his invitation.

He stated that his invitation included myself and DeLoach.

General Smith confided that after the briefing and luncheon he desired to discuss various means by which the FBI and CIA could be brought closer together. He stated that he felt that there was a great need for closer liaison between the two agencies inasmuch as he had made a survey of the existing liaison and he felt that FBI liaison efforts toward CIA were extremely beneficial and most complete; however, that liaison efforts extended by CIA toward the FBI had been somewhat miserable. He indicated that he desired to ask your advice as to what orders he could issue his subordinates in order to increase effective liaison from CIA to the FBI.

General Smith stated that he would await your convenience with respect to this matter. Mr. DeLoach told him that this information would be conveyed to you and that an answer would be forthcoming as soon as time permitted.

Attached hereto is an undated copy of a memorandum which was prepared at the specific request of [redacted] of the American Embassy at Paris. The original of this memorandum will not be delivered to MARTIN until the Bureau cables its approval.

To assist the Bureau in deciding whether the attached memorandum is responsive to [redacted] request and does not misrepresent our role here or make it subject to misinterpretation, the following background data is furnished.

By Bucable dated October 22, 1951, entitled Office Space Administrative, the Bureau instructed the Legal Attache to contact [redacted] with respect to the impending move of the Paris office. During the conversation with [redacted] on this occasion, he inquired as to the extent and the scope of the various services the office of the Legal Attache can render the Embassy. We pointed out that the former Legal Attache had previously described the FBI role to him (see Bucable #827, dated December 21, 1950, entitled Paris Office Administrative.) [redacted] commented that he recalled that the Ambassador had been dissatisfied with the brevity and inadequacy of the memorandum which had been received at the Embassy at that time. He suggested that such information would be of interest and assistance to him and he requested that a more detailed memorandum be prepared.

This office is, therefore, endeavoring to comply with [redacted] expressed desires [redacted]

PURPOSE:

To advise you of the request made of the Legal Attache in Paris by [redacted] of the Embassy, for a memorandum setting forth the extent and scope of the various services which the Legal Attache's Office can render the Embassy and to recommend that this matter be handled with the State Department through liaison.

BACKGROUND:

The Legal Attache in Paris has advised that when he conferred with [redacted] on the basis of the Bureau's instructions of October 22, 1951, relative to adequate office space for the Bureau's representatives [redacted] inquired as to the extent and scope of the various services the Office of the Legal Attache can render the Embassy. It will be recalled that in December, 1950, [redacted] who was then Legal Attache in Paris, received a similar request but in that instance it appeared that the Embassy was making a survey of all of its facilities and the request was not directed toward the Bureau's Representative in particular. Mr. L'Allier called [redacted] attention to the information submitted by [redacted] at that time, but [redacted] claimed that the Ambassador had been dissatisfied with the brevity and the inadequacy of [redacted] memorandum. [redacted] suggested that such information would be of interest and assistance to him and he requested L'Allier to prepare a more detailed memorandum.

L'Allier prepared a memorandum and submitted a copy of it as an enclosure to the attached letter from the Bureau's approval prior to furnishing it to [redacted] L'Allier states that he believes a memorandum similar to the one he proposed must be submitted to [redacted] in the immediate future and requested a cablegram in reply.

FACTS:

It appears that [redacted] current request may well be just another attempt to embarrass the Bureau's Representatives in Paris and curtail their activities. There appears to be no justifiable reason for [redacted] request and, as the Legal Attache has

It is believed that no sound reason exists for [] current request. As [] of course, is one of the ranking officials in Paris. It is believed, however, that to comply with his request might be considered by him as an acknowledgment of his authority over our setup in Paris. As pointed out in the Bureau memorandum to the Director dated October 29, 1951, relative to Mr. Roach's conversation with [] concerning the Legal Attache System, the State Department is aware of our activities abroad and has no objection to our assigning agents wherever needed to carry on the Bureau's work.

It is believed, therefore, that [] request should be brought to the attention of the State Department by liaison to find out if this is something new, and to request the State Department to advise [] of the arrangements under which we are operating abroad. If this procedure is followed, it will not be necessary for L'Allier to furnish [] with the memorandum which he has requested.

RECOMMENDATION:

It is recommended that the attached cablegram be sent to L'Allier informing him that this matter is being taken up with the State Department and that he should not submit his proposed memorandum to []

If the above recommendation is approved, it is suggested that this memorandum be returned to the Liaison Section so that the matter can be taken up with the State Department by Mr. Roach.

Reference is made to the memorandum dated October 31, 1951, from the writer to you, setting forth the request of the State Department Administrative Officer in the Embassy in Paris that the Legal Attache was to supply to him a memorandum setting forth functions and duties of a Legal Attache, together with information as to what services the Legal Attache could render to the Embassy.

Pursuant to this suggestion, which was approved by the Director, Mr. Roach discussed this matter with Mr. Donald L. Nicholson, Chief, Security Division, State Department, and pointed out to him the Bureau's position in Paris and the services the Bureau could give to the Embassy. Inquiry was made of Mr. Nicholson as to whether the request of the Administrative Officer was something new and what his opinion was concerning compliance with such a request.

Mr. Nicholson stated that he could see no useful purpose to be served by the Administrative Officer's request and that he, Nicholson, would send a cable to Paris today informing Martin that the State Department is well aware of the Bureau's operations in Paris and that the Embassy in Paris is also aware of the Bureau's activities as presented in the Legal Attache's memorandum to the Ambassador in December of 1950.

Mr. Nicholson was of the opinion that the proposed cable would handle the matter and that no further action need be taken by the Bureau in Paris in this regard.

MEMORANDUM FOR MR. TOLSON
MR. LADD
MR. NICHOLS
MR. BELMONT

11:18

Admiral Sidney Souers, Special Consultant to the President, returned my call today and I thanked him for the message he left with Mr. Ladd. Admiral Souers advised that while he understands the differentiation between the responsibilities of CIA and the FBI, since he had helped to set them both up and had worked with the FBI and CIA, he was satisfied that I would be able to get along with General Smith. He stated that General Smith recognizes that the FBI needs Agents abroad for police work and the Admiral felt that all we had to do now was to work out a modus operandi.

I told Admiral Souers I felt that what had really happened was that some of the ~~underlings~~ had caused this as I had checked back over our operations in [redacted] where any problem has arisen, and that our men there have strictly confined themselves to criminal cases. I stated that sometimes, cases like the [redacted] and even though he is a Communist, that this was a criminal case of a fugitive from justice. Admiral Souers stated that he told General Smith that as far as he was concerned, in a case like [redacted]

I told Admiral Souers that although I didn't think it was worth any tug-of-war, I was going to do my very best and if General Smith is going to be frascible about it, my intention was to just pull our men out and [redacted]

I stated I personally felt that in our position at [redacted] and [redacted] our men have meticulously confined their contacts with [redacted] and [redacted] in those matters that are purely of an internal security nature. Admiral Souers very strongly urged that we not pull out of our foreign offices.

I stated that the thing that disturbed me is that [redacted]

[redacted] stated that in going over this matter I noticed we have written many letters, many of which have been acknowledged and we haven't gotten anything from [redacted] it. Admiral Souers suggested we might select a "second team" to handle [redacted] no such matters.

RECORDED - 27

I told Admiral Souers that frankly we had too big a job in this country to do without having to carry on any so-called war as to whose protocol is being affected abroad. Admiral Souers said he felt sure we could work the problem out and mentioned he had raised the point with CIA that after all the Narcotics Bureau of the Treasury Department is working in foreign countries and CIA stated this was fine, that it didn't interfere with them, in fact, they (the Narcotics Bureau) were helpful. Admiral Souers stated he pointed out to CIA that the FBI had the same responsibility.

Admiral Souers stated he felt sure General Smith recognized the need for the FBI to have men in key spots and that what we wanted to do was do the best thing for the interests of the country. I stated that was the only interest I had and I felt if it would avoid any friction, I was willing to get out and let them handle it, though I had grave misgivings as to what the over-all results would then be.

Admiral Souers stated that the sad part was that any outfit that grows up as fast as that is bound to have a lot of the same type of things that General Donovan had. He stated it was unfortunate but it takes a long time to build and they end up by getting a conglomerate. He expressed the confidence that he was sure we could work the matter out satisfactorily without our moving out of our foreign offices. I told him I certainly hoped so and that I would keep him informed of developments.

Very truly yours,

b7COBSERVATIONS:

I am of the opinion that General Smith may possibly, at some time in the near future, ask the Director for a clarification of our Legal Attache system. In view of this possibility it is believed advisable to immediately approach the proper official at the Department of State relative to determining if there is any necessity for additional agreements regarding the Bureau's Legal Attaches.

It is believed doubtful that State will think such action necessary. In this connection, Mr. Neal of State advised Mr. Roach on October 22, 1951, that he was of the opinion "the Director of the FBI could send as many men as he wanted to any part of the world." Should State continue this opinion and further indicate no current agreements are necessary, we will be in a position to give General Smith the answer that we have approached State and that this particular Department seemed perfectly satisfied with the present Legal Attache arrangement, and, in fact, did not think any current definitions or agreements necessary.

however, the General had seen fit to refer to such matters as being more or less trivial. It was indicated that General Smith, instead of being willing to discuss such matters freely, had desired to more or less adopt a defensive attitude and hide behind his four Stars. It was indicated to Admiral Souers that General Smith had been both temperamental and conciliatory in his attitude toward the above complaint. Admiral Souers was advised that [redacted]

Admiral Souers advised that he was delighted to hear your side of the story. He stated that General Smith had already made attempts to approach him regarding matters in which CIA felt the FBI had erred. [redacted]

[redacted] Admiral Souers stated that General Smith's actions were uncalled for in the temperamental attitude he exhibited during the above-mentioned discussion. He stated that Smith was a sensationalist and actually an ulcerated old man; that the four Stars he presently possesses and his Army background had undoubtedly given him a feeling of an egotist. Admiral Souers stated that basically he felt that General Smith was an honest fellow who wanted to do a good job, however, that undoubtedly he had subordinates within CIA who were definitely misleading him or else those subordinates were not allowing certain information to reach him.

Admiral Souers stated he felt that General Smith should have the same type of excellent screening system within CIA that is now possessed by the FBI, i.e., the Director of the FBI and his subordinates taking a personal interest in the activities of the FBI and seeing to it that all matters of interest definitely reach the head of the agency. He stated that General Smith could not accomplish such a setup within CIA and probably his subordinates do not have the administrative ability for effecting such a setup.

DeLoach advised Admiral Souers that you were not interested in starting any war or trivial controversy with General Smith or the Central Intelligence Agency.

before the FBI would suffer any embarrassment or would undergo such a troublesome phase of petty arguments with CIA, our entire staff of Legal Attaches would be pulled in from the foreign field. It was also brought to Admiral Souers' attention at this point that General Smith seemed to be more or less misled regarding his coordination of intelligence powers. The General's recent statement regarding the fact that he had the legal right to coordinate the activities of the IIC if he so chose was brought to Admiral Souers' attention.

Admiral Souers was of the opinion that you could send men to any part of the world you desired in order to carry out the terrific burden facing the FBI in the internal security field. He stated that the President also shared this opinion. He indicated that General Smith had no right whatsoever to attempt to coordinate the activities of the IIC or the FBI. He stated that the charter of the IIC and the many Presidential directives issued by the President concerning the jurisdiction of the FBI definitely pointed out CIA's inability to control any activity of either the FBI or the IIC. Admiral Souers stated that he would appreciate you being advised that he would see General Smith immediately and straighten him out regarding not only the lack of coordination power of CIA in matters affecting domestic intelligence, but additionally the fact that General Smith should weed out some of his subordinates and attempt to become closer to the FBI.

He indicated this would be done in such a manner as to not reflect upon you or the Bureau.

Admiral Souers stated that personally he felt that General Smith could be easily kept on the straight and narrow path if you would occasionally give him a call or see him whenever convenient to you.

Admiral Souers was advised that General Smith had invited you to have lunch with him on November 7, 1951. The Admiral indicated he would straighten Smith out prior to that time.

Pat Coyne was also advised in this connection subsequent to the time of the interview with Admiral Souers.

General Bolling of G-2 was briefed this afternoon relative to the same matter. A separate memorandum is being prepared regarding this interview. An appointment has been made with Admiral Johnson for tomorrow morning relative to briefing him.

A discussion was had by Mr. Roach with Mr. Jack D. Neal, State Department, this morning concerning the Bureau's Legal Attache coverage in Latin America and particularly in Mexico City. Mr. Neal is of the very definite opinion that there is no need for any additional agreements or clarifications of the Bureau's position regarding our assignment of Agents as Legal Attaches to the various Embassies.

Pursuant to instructions, I had Mr. Roach informally discuss with Mr. Jack D. Neal (Mr. Neal formerly handled all Bureau Legal Attache administrative matters in the State Department and is now Chief of the Mexican Affairs Division) and outline to him [REDACTED]

Mr. Neal reiterated the fact that it was his definite opinion that there was no need at this time to have any so-called "Charter" to delineate the Bureau's responsibility and jurisdiction. He stated that it had been his instructions from the various Secretaries of State, from Cordell Hull to and including George Marshall, that the Bureau was privileged to send men to any country in the world and that the State Department approved and would back up such assignments. Mr. Neal also informed Mr. Roach that it recently became necessary for him to write a personal note to the Counselor of the U. S. Embassy in Mexico City to impress upon him, and he in turn upon Ambassador O'Dwyer, that the Bureau is operating in Mexico with complete authority from the State Department and that such approval also related to assignments in other countries where Bureau liaison personnel are now assigned.

BUREAU AUTHORITY TO OPERATE LEGAL ATTACHES IN LIAISON CAPACITY:

As you will recall, under date of August 12, 1946, Mr. F. A. Tamm conferred with Admiral Leahy, then Chief of Staff to President Truman, concerning the Bureau's assignment of liaison representatives in various world capitals. It was during this conference that Admiral Leahy indicated that it was President Truman's desire to establish a world-wide intelligence service and to relieve the Bureau of all its foreign responsibility in the interest of enabling the Bureau to discharge its domestic responsibility. He (Leahy) stated that the President and he were of the opinion that the Bureau should continue to maintain Agents in any part of the world deemed necessary for the facilitating of the discharging of the Bureau's responsibilities. (67-383781-962)

You will also recall that under date of June 16, 1947, Mr. Jack E. Peurifoy, then Assistant Secretary of State, called upon you and in response to a discussion of the matter of the Bureau using the title "Legal Attache," stated that he had discussed with Secretary of State Marshall this matter and that the Secretary of State wished to inform the Director that any time the Bureau desired to have anyone proceed to any part of the world, either openly as an FBI Agent or otherwise, the Secretary would be glad to approve it. Mr. Peurifoy stated that insofar as the FBI men assigned to the Embassies are concerned, they, of course, should be continued and that the question of the use of the title "Legal Attache" should be considered settled. (62-39749-911)

Since the departure of Mr. Peurifoy from his position in the State Department, he was succeeded by Mr. Carlisle H. Humesine, now Deputy Under Secretary of State for Administration. Prior to the recent assignments of Assistant Legal Attaches to the Embassies in

London and Paris, Mr. Roach discussed these assignments with Mr. Humelsine and Mr. Samuel Boykin, Director of the Office of Consular Affairs, State Department, at which time both Humelsine and Boykin stated that they readily approved the assignments from the State Department's viewpoint and that they would, in the future, approve any such assignments that the Bureau desired to make.

COMMENTS:

From the above enumerated facts, it is believed that the Bureau cannot be successfully attacked regarding our jurisdiction and authority to place Legal Attaches for liaison work in the offices where they now serve or other offices in the future. Although the Bureau does not have a so-called written "Charter," it is not believed that one is necessary or desirable and that we should continue our operations as in the past, based upon the White House and State Department approvals, notwithstanding any comments or heckling of CIA representatives either in the field or here at the Seat of Government.

Admiral Souers advised [redacted] that he is to have lunch with General Smith on Monday, November 5, 1951, and that he expects to "have Smith's thinking on these matters completely straightened out" by that time. He stated that Smith told him that you and he are having lunch together on November 7, 1951, and inquired whether he, Admiral Souers, would care to have lunch with you and General Smith on that date. Admiral Souers stated he advised General Smith that he felt you and General Smith could very easily iron out any problems now existing by sitting down to lunch and discussing these matters, and that he, Admiral Souers, did not feel that he should attend as a "referee."

Admiral Souers desired that the results of his conversation with General Smith be called to your attention. General Smith was obviously somewhat nonplused. Without endeavoring to answer the above matters, he began groping for incidents that would put us on the defensive. Smith first stated he had been wanting to talk to the Director so that we could get a better understanding between the two organizations. However, he then stated he wanted to talk to the two of us confidentially as he had dealt with us in the past and liked us, and what he said was on a frank basis and not meant to be conveyed to Mr. Hoover.

General Smith stated he felt the FBI was not cooperating with CIA as it should. [REDACTED]

b3

At this point, it was rather forcefully pointed out to General Smith that what he was discussing was [redacted]

[redacted] caused a lack of confidence on the part of the FBI in some of his organization, which lack of confidence might have an important bearing on coordination with CIA and the furnishing of information to CIA. It was pointed out to the General that this did not involve a lack of confidence in him personally, but certainly he must agree we could not be expected to trust his representatives who went out of their way to make difficulties for us. He was advised we could bring to him a long list of complaints of incidents of lack of cooperation on the part of his representatives, but this was not the purpose of our visit; that we were talking to him in an effort to straighten out an extremely unsatisfactory situation.

Smith stated these incidents were more or less trivial, that they could be easily solved, that he could control his organization, and he would take action to see to it that his people in the wrong were straightened out. He stated, however, that there were two sides to the story and he strongly felt that by Mr. Hoover and some of his assistants getting together with him, General Smith, and some of his assistants, the matter could be easily straightened out as he felt there was nothing fundamentally wrong. Smith was definitely informed that such a conference could do no good unless these incidents causing a lack of confidence on our part in his organization were corrected.

Smith spent some time describing his admiration for the Director and for the FBI as an organization. He stated he felt his own organization needed a great many things that the Bureau has, particularly the continuity of leadership and the strong personal leadership.

During this conversation, General Smith was alternately very angry and very conciliatory. He, of course, is a man who has a quick temper. At one point, General Smith asked if what we were ready for was a "war" between CIA and the FBI. An immediate answer was given to him that we were ready if such were necessary. It was pointed out to him that if CIA persisted in their attempts to embarrass us abroad, we would pull out and leave CIA to take the responsibility for what followed. General Smith immediately backed up and stated that this was not at all the solution, adding he was confident that by getting together we could solve the difficulties and have closer coordination. In fact, he pointed out that the solution was not for the FBI to pull out of the foreign field, but probably for it instead to increase its coverage after a basis of coordination was arranged.

General Smith was informed that if he had any complaints regarding cooperation on our part to make, we would like to have them, and that we would like to know specifically what he has in mind regarding closer coordination. He, however, was somewhat evasive because apparently he did not have tangible facts at hand. He stated the things he had in mind were trivial and that he did not want to engage in carping complaints.

At the end of the interview, General Smith was conciliatory. He stressed that he wanted to get together with the Director and his top assistants with a view to ironing out difficulties which he realized existed and that undoubtedly there were faults in CIA. He mentioned several times he would like to correct this situation before he left CIA.

General Smith specifically stated he was not aware of any concerted campaign in his organization designed against the Bureau, but that he was willing and able to take care of any particular situation he found by appropriately disciplining employees.

General Smith, as noted, at times became extremely angry, but all-in-all, I think he has an honest feeling that coordination can be improved and has probably been misled by his own associates with reference to the true situation. There is no question but that we succeeded in getting over to him the true picture, which will cause him considerable thought. General Smith is a capable man, but is quick-tempered and an extreme Pursuant to your instructions, Inspector DeLoach called upon Admiral Sidney Souers this afternoon at 3:30 P.M. and generally briefed Admiral Souers relative to your conference with General Smith this morning.

Admiral Souers was furnished a copy of [redacted]

[redacted] It was indicated to Admiral Souers that the briefing in question was entirely objective and outlined our present liaison relations and the many problems we have with CIA.

b3

Admiral Souers confided that General Smith had called him at 2:30 P.M. today and had indicated that the luncheon with you was a complete success. Smith was quoted as indicating that he considered you to be most gracious and that he personally felt the FBI and CIA would get along wonderfully well in the future.

Inspector DeLoach indicated to Admiral Souers that you had instructed him to wish the Admiral a most happy visit to Key West with President Truman and that we would be delighted to extend him any assistance available during his visit to Florida.

General Walter Bedell Smith, CIA, telephonically inquired of Mr. DeLoach ~~at~~ this morning at 11:00 A.M. if you were back in town. He stated that he wanted to call you within the next few days and arrange an appointment in order to discuss several matters which he felt would bring the FBI and CIA closer together.

General Smith specifically stated he was interested in proposing desk to desk liaison between the Bureau and CIA. He added that he also still felt strongly about CIA becoming a member of the IIC.

Mr. DeLoach advised General Smith that he was unaware of your commitments, however, that you would be glad, if available, to talk to him when he called.

You will recall that General Walter Bedell Smith of CIA has indicated he desires to discuss with you the possibility of establishing desk to desk liaison between CIA and the FBI.

I. DESK TO DESK LIAISON WITH CIA

You will remember that General Smith mentioned this matter to me on August 9, 1951, briefly, before attending a meeting of the Intelligence Advisory Committee. I told him at that time that you had foreseen the necessity of liaison years ago and that you had appointed a representative to serve as liaison representative with CIA; and that additionally you had permitted several of our representatives to meet informally with CIA representatives in order to discuss key espionage cases. General Smith was evidently unaware of this latter fact.

With regard to General Smith discussing liaison matters with you

A. ARGUMENTS IN FAVOR OF CIA'S PROPOSAL

(1) Exchanges of Information Could Be Speeded Up

At the present time the FBI and CIA communicate through the medium of letters, memoranda, telephone, and

CCD:mfs:nlb

used C.A. Boring 11/15/51

5-9

direct teletype. A verbal exchange of information between the various factions of each agency would facilitate the handling of matters.

(2) There Would Be A More Free Exchange of Information

It is believed that direct verbal discussions would allow for more freedom in the exchange of information. Personnel of the two agencies would come to know each other better and would therefore be willing to release information more freely.

(3) There Would Be A More Complete Integration of Efforts

Frequent exchanges of information on a personal basis would closely coordinate the ramifications of domestic and foreign intelligence.

B. ARGUMENTS AGAINST CIA'S PROPOSAL

(1) Lack of Proper Control

While it is true that the exchange of information could be facilitated by allowing verbal discussions, at the same time there would be no centralized control of liaison, therefore exchanges of information, including policies established regarding cases, would become hopelessly snarled. Both Admiral Hillenkoetter, General Smith's predecessor, and General Smith have admitted that with respect to CIA's interadministrative activities, "the left hand doesn't know what the right hand is doing." We would not like to become an innocent party involved in such malfeasance.

(2) Inclination of CIA Personnel to Withhold Information

Although General Smith thus far has evidenced a rather cooperative attitude personally, we still face a rather ineffective form of hostility and suspicion from ex-Agents and former OSS men, who largely make up CIA's Investigative Division. As a result, it is believed there would be an inclination on the part of CIA to withhold information and at the same time that agency would attempt to obtain as much of our information as possible.

~~SECRET~~

(3) [REDACTED]

b3

(4) Waste of Time Involved

To allow desk to desk liaison with CIA, or frequent personal contacts between Section Chiefs, would be a considerable waste of time. This fact is especially true if only matters of a general nature are to be discussed. Such matters can be handled through Liaison as they have been in the past. In this manner only one man is tied up instead of a larger number of personnel. It is believed that one liaison representative can control and adequately handle any discussions that CIA representatives wish to enter into.

C. ASSISTANCE RENDERED CIA

As you know, we have, since the existence of CIA, allowed that agency guidance in weighty problems. In effect, we have "wet-nursed" them considerably through the "growing pains" stage. There has been little show of gratitude on their part. For your information, there follows a listing of some of the projects in which we have rendered aid to the agency after obtaining your approval. As you will note, these projects could definitely be classed as "desk to desk liaison"; therefore we have ~~long~~ long ago allowed CIA the very privileges they are requesting at this time:

(1) Establishment and Maintenance of a Records System

We have given CIA representatives a total of six tours through our Records Division. Lectures on how to establish and maintain a records system have been given on each occasion. The tours and lectures have tied up one man for at least a total of two days.

(2) Personnel Policies

On four occasions, CIA representatives have been given the benefit of lectures regarding the selection of FBI personnel, personnel promotion policies, personnel management problems, etc.

(3) Training and Inspection of Personnel

On two occasions, we have given CIA representatives lectures regarding the captioned matter.

(4) Tours of FBI Facilities

On eighteen different occasions, we have allowed CIA to bring foreign police and intelligence officials to the Bureau for extensive tours of our facilities. On three occasions, we have discussed police matters with those officials. The facilities at Quantico have been included on four of the tours. CIA has advised that these tours and discussions have made a terrific impression on foreign officials, therefore allowing CIA representatives in foreign countries a chance for closer cooperation with the foreign officials in question.

~~SECRET~~

(5) Applicant Investigative Matters

On one occasion an FBI representative lectured for four hours at a CIA training school relative to procedures in handling applicant investigations. The CIA trainees were given considerable information on how to conduct investigations regarding name checks, credit and criminal records, neighborhood investigations, scholastic checks, employment file reviews, etc.

(6) Establishment and Maintenance of FBI Library

A representative of CIA was recently given an extensive briefing on how the FBI Library was set up and maintained. The CIA employee spent a day and a half studying our methods so that a similar system could be established at CIA.

(7) Training in Defensive Tactics

A CIA representative was given a full course of instructions in judo and defensive tactics in the FBI gymnasium. [REDACTED]

b3

(8) Lectures Regarding FBI Jurisdiction

On three occasions, CIA requested and was given the benefit of lectures regarding FBI jurisdiction and the type of information that the FBI would like to receive from CIA.

OBSERVATIONS:

The present liaison channels between the FBI and CIA are believed to be both adequate and sufficient. The current channels, which consist of daily contact with CIA representatives by our liaison representative, teletype and telephone messages that are channeled through liaison, have established an effective controlled system of dealing with the Central Intelligence Agency.

To allow CIA and its inexperienced Section Chiefs and supervisors complete freedom in requesting information from us would be, in effect, allowing that agency an opportunity to integrate and extend its so-called coordination powers into the domestic intelligence field, i.e. a steady flow of uncontrolled factual information from the FBI to CIA would allow that agency to disseminate more and more reports which contain FBI information on a wholesale basis. These reports would, of course, go out under the guise of CIA workmanship.

1. It is therefore believed that the present channels of liaison service with CIA should be maintained in the future.

Reference is made to the memorandum of November 16, 1951, reflecting that [redacted] of CIA had advised that several months ago there had been a trivial clash of personalities between [redacted] and SAC Soucy. [redacted] stated that CIA had no complaint whatsoever against SAC Thornton. [redacted]

You instructed that we contact Soucy at once and that we caution Thornton to be most circumspect in contacts with [redacted]

Mr. Keay in my absence contacted SAC Soucy at Knoxville telephonically. Soucy stated that there was no basis in fact for these allegations. He stated that while he was in Boston there was actually little dealings with [redacted] inasmuch as there was little business between CIA and the Bureau. He was instructed to send in a teletype reflecting details of his dealings with [redacted]. A copy of the teletype from Soucy is attached. [redacted]

[redacted] Soucy points out that there was no basis for friction arising and adds that his limited contact with [redacted] was not such as to justify any inference that the Boston office was not desirous of completely cooperating with CIA in matters of mutual interest.

Assistant SAC Ed McCabe was contacted in the absence of SAC Thornton. He was instructed that the Boston office be most circumspect in any contacts with CIA as long as [redacted] McCabe stated that he would insure that this was done. [redacted] [redacted] telephoned [redacted] and stated he has a friend who has another friend who has some information which is extremely important and it affects infiltration of CIA and also the situation that these people have abroad. [redacted] stated it was rather a complicated story, and he had tried to get in touch with Miss Gandy, SAC Scheidt but he was not in the office. I informed him that SAC Scheidt was sick and ASAC Whelan was acting. [redacted] thought it would be a good idea if a man from the FBI could meet him and the informant to see what the story is. I told [redacted] Mr. Whelan would get in touch with him today.

[redacted] said the host would be [redacted]. [redacted] said he was very much impressed with what this fellow has on his mind and if Mr. Whelan could let him know when he could see them, in the meantime he would talk to [redacted] who just got in town this morning. I gave him Mr. Whelan's full name and thanked him for calling.

[redacted] wanted to be remembered to Mr. Hoover and asked how he was.

Addendum: I called ASAC Whelan and gave him [redacted] telephone no. and he will call him right away this morning and make arrangements to contact him personally.

I returned the call of Admiral Souers and asked whether I could be of any assistance. He stated that he merely wanted you to know that General Smith had come to him with his troubles concerning CIA and that he, Admiral Souers, had had lunch with General Smith on Monday, November 5. General Smith had desired that Admiral Souers have lunch with you and General Smith, but Admiral Souers advised him that he did not believe it would be desirable to serve as a referee. He pointed out that the General is quite a prima donna.

Admiral Souers stated that he told General Smith that he thought it was important that the Bureau first work out the relationship between his representatives abroad and the Legal Attaches where they were needed as the FBI needed them in a number of countries and that he thought it was important that the foreigners would know which was which and the responsibility of each.

In this regard, Admiral Souers stated that he thought it might be desirable for someone from the Bureau to meet regularly with top representatives from CIA.

Admiral Souers further stated that General Smith has accepted the theory which he, Admiral Souers, advanced that the Bureau was not responsible for the Burgess-MacLean matter.

He stated that he also mentioned the

SUBJECT: LIAISON RELATIONS WITH CIA
BOSTON DIVISION OF FBI

Inspector DeLoach this morning relative to advising that he had recently talked to [redacted] CIA, contacted [redacted] and that this individual had claimed that our SAC in Boston had refused to answer several telephone calls received from CIA people in that area. Furthermore [redacted] felt that active resistance against them was being established by our SAC in Boston.

DeLoach immediately challenged [redacted] for substantiating facts. [redacted]

Also, that perhaps there was a clash of personalities in existence. DeLoach asked [] if he could obtain any proof of such allegations, whereupon [] replied that he felt his man had no proof; however, he would request that any facts available be immediately supplied to the Washington level. It was pointed out to [] that the FBI would not condone any such situation if the CIA charges were true, and that we, of course, would establish our own inquiry. [] indicated that he felt the FBI should be advised of the above situation, in view of the recent harmonious conference between Mr. Hoover and General Smith; also because of the fact that Liaison relations have always been good at the Seat of Government level.

after he had surveyed this situation and that he advise us of any incidents which would give rise to this complaint on the part of CIA and whether there was any basis for this complaint by CIA.

Reference is made to my memorandum of November 7, 1951, regarding the conference you had with General Bedell Smith of CIA. There follows an analysis of the attached brief, which General Smith furnished the Bureau at that meeting.

AGENDA

This portion of the brief consisted of the data which was read to you by General Smith. It starts out by stating that the present cooperation should be extended through mutual trust and more complete discussion of "information, intentions, problems, and operations which cause mutual concern." Discussions are mentioned "to include joint strategy meetings and to allow for constructive criticism;" also, "inter-agency contacts on all levels of authority."

The points read to you were briefly as follows:

(1) Problems.(a) Legal Attaches.

CIA agrees as to the necessity for "police function" and desires to assist in that connection. Where dual relations with foreign intelligence services exist, it is pointed out that close contact is necessary between the FBI and CIA to prevent confusion.

(2) Liaison.

It is pointed out that present general liaison arrangements should be continued, but the existing operational liaison should be intensified to include operational discussions and planning.

(3) Future Meetings.

This covers the proposal that staff meetings be held regularly.

(4) Positive Foreign Intelligence

This discusses the fact that the FBI undoubtedly is the recipient of a considerable amount of positive foreign intelligence information. It suggests passage of this information to CIA would be of assistance.

LIAISON WITH THE FBI

This section of the brief discusses generally relations with the FBI, but does not refer to specific cases. They say that "present relations with the FBI leave much to be desired" and add that this may to some extent be explained by a failure on the part of both the FBI and CIA to appreciate adequately the responsibilities of the other. They do say that relations between the two organizations are friendly. It is pointed out that it might help to have closer cooperation and working relations on other than specific cases, such as having joint staff meetings.

It is pointed out that the problem is how to best remove points of misunderstanding and duplication and to facilitate cooperative effort. The brief analyzed major causes of friction as follows:

The brief then outlines the present setup in CIA with respect to liaison with the Bureau, that is, it points out which desks have such liaison. They state they have invited the FBI to extend desk-to-desk liaison to include Communist and Soviet intelligence affairs and defection and double agent cases.

b1
b3

They state that no further extension of desk-to-desk liaison other than that suggested is necessary at this time.

They then mention the desirability of the meeting which was held with General Smith by you and suggest that following this initial meeting, there be staff meetings of senior representatives of both organizations on a monthly basis.

With respect to desk-to-desk liaison, actually CIA is proposing little more than what presently exists in that there are contacts on this basis where necessary, but they are handled and controlled by our Liaison Desk. We, of course, should continue to closely control these contacts and not encourage any extension of such. The need for this type of desk-to-desk liaison will, in large part, be eliminated by the proposed staff conferences on a monthly basis.

Concerning the activities of our Legal Attaches abroad, there does not appear, from reading this brief, to be any fundamental disagreement and we can straighten CIA out with respect to the operations of our Legal Attaches at the staff conferences.

He said his son, got a job with CIA that he has not been cleared for classified information; that CIA will not give him anything to do, although he is drawing a salary, and that he is tired of working cross-word puzzles and doing nothing. said he understood that the FBI cleared such individuals and that clearance had not been received from the FBI.

I pointed out to that the FBI does not "clear" anyone for access to classified information. I told him that, of course, we do conduct name checks and loyalty checks for other Government organizations. I pointed out that very frequently we receive requests from individuals, such as himself, and it later turns out that the Government agency in question has never even submitted the name to us for a check. I told him, however, that I would look into the matter and that if we are conducting an investigation of any type, I would see what could be done to expedite it.

I have had a check made of the files and there is no pending investigation on It may be that a loyalty form is in possession of the Bureau in unprocessed work. There is no way of checking this without a complete examination of all forms on hand in the Bureau, which is not justified.

During recent months, relations with the Embassy have been entirely normal and satisfactory; however, immediately following the apprehension of GUS HALL and while the Legal Attache was out of town, an incident took place which merits detailed reporting to the Bureau. As of instant date, I believe things have returned to normal but because the incident served to point out the identities of persons not too favorably disposed towards us, the matter is being followed up by a specific recommendation to the Bureau.

EMBASSY STAFF MEETING OCTOBER 11, 1951

SA [] attended the Ambassador's staff meeting in the absence of the Legal Attache and of SA [] on October 11th. The Legal Attache and SA [] were at that date in Laredo, Texas, in connection with the GUS HALL deportation proceedings.

EXPEDITE PROCESSING

The preceding evening, Ambassador WILLIAM [] had received a telephone call from the United Press representative concerning the GUS HALL case and [] had been asked to step down to the Ambassador's office. The Ambassador asked [] if the Embassy had official knowledge of HALL'S arrest and deportation and [] following Bureau instructions, advised that there was no official knowledge but that for the Ambassador's personal information, the Mexican Police had arrested HALL and had deported him. The Ambassador then advised the United Press that there was no official knowledge concerning the case and thereafter the Ambassador, in a very friendly fashion, indicated to SA [] his personal pleasure over the fact that HALL had been arrested and sent back to prison.

On the following morning at his staff meeting Ambassador OLDWYER exhibited an entirely distinct frame of mind. In the presence of the other Embassy officials attending the staff meeting, the Ambassador told SA [] that he had noted from the papers that GUS HALL had been delivered by Mexican Police to the FBI in Laredo, Texas. He observed that he knew nothing personally about the case.

but as far as he was concerned, the results were excellent. He said that the issue he was about to raise had nothing to do whatsoever with the HALL case but stated he had been seriously concerned over the problem of what might happen in the future in a similar case and in so far as the activities of the Bureau's office in Mexico City were concerned. He thereupon quoted a hypothetical case in which an American fugitive being taken to the border by Mexican Police was killed in an automobile accident en route to the border.

At this point, SA [] courteously stated to the Ambassador that since the discussion seemed to involve a question of policy with respect to the Office of the Legal Attache, it would appear desirable to defer the discussion until the Legal Attache could talk personally with the Ambassador. The Ambassador, however, said he felt this should be discussed at the Embassy staff conference and he proceeded to continue the discussion. b7B

The Ambassador said that if, in the future, a hypothetical case turned out badly, then the newspapers in the U.S. might publish stories to the effect that FBI agents were involved in the case in Mexico and the Ambassador would be put in an embarrassing position trying to answer questions concerning a matter of which he had no personal knowledge. The Ambassador appeared to be worried solely about what columnists and reporters in the U.S. might write and question. He said he knew what it was like to face a Senate investigating committee with newsmen and television cameras surrounding him and he never wanted to be placed in such a position and have to say that he didn't know what was going on within his own Embassy.

The Ambassador then said that he felt the Office of the Legal Attache was doing an excellent job but he wondered if it would not be better to have it outside the Embassy so that the Ambassador would not have to find himself responsible for activities about which he knew nothing. He observed that as long as things went well, everything would be just fine but if anything were to go wrong, then he would be left holding the sack and he did not wish to do this.

He then said that he wondered if there was an agreement between the Department of State and the FBI regarding our responsibilities in Mexico. He thought he would like to have a statement in writing that he would not be held responsible for anything which we might do in the future which might put him in an embarrassing position. The Ambassador had scarcely terminated these remarks [redacted]

LEGAL ATTACHE'S CONVERSATION WITH MINISTER-
COUNSELOR PAUL T. GULBERTSON

The Legal Attache returned to Mexico City from the border on the night of October 12, 1951 and upon learning of the foregoing, went to the residence of the Minister-Counselor on the morning of October 13th. The Minister-Counselor was extremely friendly and this matter was discussed for approximately one hour. The points developed in response to the Legal Attache's questions were as follows:

1. The Minister-Counselor had been completely surprised by the Ambassador's remarks at the staff meeting and had had no previous indication that the Ambassador was going to talk about this matter.
2. The Minister-Counselor felt that it was a matter that should properly have been taken up between the Ambassador and the Legal Attache in private session.
3. The Ambassador's remarks did not reflect Department of State attitude or thinking as evidenced from any communications between the Embassy and the Department concerning the GUS HALL matter. The Department had not as yet communicated with the Embassy concerning the GUS HALL matter and the Minister-Counselor had no reason to believe that the Department of State was feeling critical. The Minister-Counselor himself gave no evidence of feeling critical about the case and was inclined to feel that it was probably handled very well.

The Minister-Counselor had nothing to criticize in connection with SA [] handling of the matter and he noted that during the end of the conversation at the staff meeting the Ambassador had adopted a position which was definitely on the defensive, this being due to [] able handling of the Ambassador's queries.

The Minister-Counselor said to the Legal Attache that it should be always borne in mind that the Ambassador is "gun shy" and he is always thinking now of Senate hearings and other investigations which may embarrass him. Accordingly, his reactions are not entirely those of a person who would not have to think about such investigations. Mr. CULBERTSON said that much of what the Ambassador had said could be made understandable when the Ambassador's feelings with regard to investigations in the U.S. are considered. He wondered if perhaps the Ambassador had not at some time in the past had a clash with the FBI and that as a result, his thinking with respect to the FBI might be influenced.

b1
b3
b7C

It should be noted that Minister-Counselor CULBERTSON is the career officer of the Foreign Service who substantially runs the Embassy in Mexico City. He is very friendly with the Bureau's representatives and has always given every indication of cooperating with us.

I asked Mr. CULBERTSON if he thought this matter had serious connotations and he felt that it was not too serious a matter but it was something that should be given consideration. I asked him if he thought I should see the Ambassador immediately and he stated that due to the Ambassador's nature, it would probably be better to wait until the following Monday, at which time the Ambassador would probably have forgotten much of this.

MEETING WITH AMBASSADOR WILLIAM O'DWYER
OCTOBER 15, 1951

On Monday, October 15th, the Legal Attache made an appointment to see the Ambassador and thereafter talked with the Ambassador for approximately 1-1/2 hours. During the first half of the conversation Mr. CULBERTSON was also present. The Ambassador was extremely pleasant and it seemed to the Legal Attache that he had reflected over what he had said at the staff meeting and probably regretted some of it. He gave every indication of wanting to help the Office of the Legal Attache in its work in Mexico.

He said that he regretted having brought up this matter at the staff meeting since another time and place would probably have been preferable. He explained that the only thing that really concerned him was that he should be able to aid the Bureau's work in Mexico by knowing how to tell the press the right thing when he receives inquiries. He said that he should be able to tell the press the right thing, both to help the case at hand and also to present an intelligent appearance on behalf of the Embassy. He stated that his relations with Director HOOVER and with the Bureau had always been excellent and he had great admiration for the way we worked. He said that there was enough "of the cop in him" so that he wished he could personally have been present when GUS HALL was arrested. He felt that probably this arrest would result in being an excellent deterrent as to keeping other American Communists from coming to Mexico.

I asked the Ambassador if SA [] actuation during my absence had been satisfactory and he stated that [] had given him the necessary information when he had asked [] concerning the case.

He stated that he did not wish to pry into our business and he felt it best that probably he should not know of some of the things which we regarded as confidential operations. I told the Ambassador that he, as Chief of Mission, had a right

CONCLUSIONS

My conclusions are the following:

With Respect to Ambassador O'Dwyer

The Ambassador has impressed me as being a person who lacks continuity of purpose since he becomes extremely enthusiastic about a certain matter on a given day and several days later appears to have lost interest. I do not think his remarks about our possibly operating from without the Embassy should be taken too seriously. He now appears to be completely favorable towards us, at least in so far as his overt expressions are concerned. Possibly much of what he said to me stems from his very definite respect for the Bureau's reputation, power and authority. On the other hand, since the Ambassador does have the personality and background which he does, I feel we would not be warranted, at any time, in assuming that under a given set of circumstances we would get full cooperation. He would always be governed by how he himself would fare at the given time, depending upon whether his personal fortunes were going well or badly. His primary consideration appears always to be defending his personal situation against possible future political attack.

[redacted] was supplied to Agent [redacted] in confidence and is not to be divulged outside the FBI.

It is unknown whether or not this new procedure, which applies to all government agencies and persons authorized to receive CIA information, will increase the amount of time necessary for FBI name checks to be processed thru CIA. However, it is believed that the Bureau should be advised of this new procedure and will be further advised if any additional delay in receipt of CIA information is encountered.
